Locating Journal Articles

General Information

This guide is designed to help you locate copies of journal articles related to your research topic.

Identify Articles

Search online databases to find specific articles related to your topic. In addition to our database subscriptions, your local public library probably also has subscriptions to different full-text databases so I recommend that you also check there. All it takes is a library card.

In Our Full-Text Database:

Our LIRN Database provides millions of peer-reviewed and full-text journal, magazine, and newspaper articles, e-books, podcasts, audio, and video resources to support academic studies from Gale Cengage, ProQuest, and more, covering topics for General Education, Business, and Medical programs.

In the Mortuary Science database:

The Morgue is Kansas City Kansas Community College Library's index to Mortuary Science journals. The Morgue does not index articles relating to association news, conventions, interviews, features, reader's forums, advertisements, classified ads, obituaries, or briefs. The Morgue does not provide online access to the full text of any article. It does provide a full citation that you can use to locate that article. And you may purchase copies of the articles from KCKCC Library for $3 per article delivered by US Mail or $5 per article delivered by fax.

Finding Print Copies of an Article

- First, email your citation to library@commonwealth.edu to see if we have it in our collection!
- Check WorldCat for the journal title. If you find the title there you can enter your zip code to see libraries near you that have that title in their catalog. A general list can be seen by searching the subject “Undertakers and undertaking – Periodicals”. I recommend that you follow the link of the library name to be sure they do have it in their collection. The individual library catalog entry should tell you what date range they have for your title.

Once you identify an owning library (or two for safety), contact your local public library’s Interlibrary Loan office to request the article copy you need.

- Most journals have a website. Some will email you a pdf of the article you are looking for. It’s worth asking, especially for those you can’t acquire through Interlibrary Loan.

LIRN Gale Core Collection Overview:
Getting Started Searching Your Online Library Resources

This document is designed to help you get started using the databases in your Gale Core Collection from LIRN. Your Core Collection includes more databases than we can cover in one guide. We've highlighted some key databases. Learning about the search techniques and tools in these will prepare you to search other databases.

Accessing Your LIRN Resources
Login according to your school's method of accessing online library resources. This may mean you log in to your school's online portal and follow the link to LIRN, or you may go to https://proxy.lirn.net/CommonwealthInstOfFuneralSvc and login with your school's LIRN credentials.

Once you are logged in to the LIRN portal, you will see the Subject View which allows you to click on a subject category and see the relevant databases. You can also click on the Vendor View tab to see databases listed alphabetically beneath the name of the vendor. Click on the database you would like to link to and it will open in a new tab in your browser.

Gale Virtual Reference Library (GVRL)
This is an excellent starting point where students just beginning research on a topic can find overview information. GVRL includes over 2000 volumes of online reference books. When you search, you will access content by chapters of these books. You can browse for books, search within categories, and search/browse within each book.

When you are viewing a chapter from a book in GVRL, you will have Tools on the right to work with the content (Citation Tools, E-mail, Download, Print, and more). Near the top left under the chapter title you will see a Listen option that can be helpful for students with reading or vision challenges.
Gale Academic OneFile

Academic OneFile is a multidisciplinary database. Its search features and tools are representative of the majority of Gale databases. Once you are comfortable searching Academic OneFile, you'll be able to search other Gale databases with ease. Academic OneFile primarily includes articles from periodicals – journals, magazines, news.

After you run a search, you will see several options to the right of your results for refining them. Under Limit Search by: you can check Full Text to limit to only articles with the full text available. You can also check Peer Reviewed Journals. Under Content Types you can switch between the content types you are viewing. Content Types can include Academic Journals, Magazines, Books, News, and Videos. You can also limit your search by Publication Dates, Subjects, Document Type, and Publication Title.
Gale Business Insights: Global
Business Insights: Global is an excellent source for company and industry information. Use the drop-down box to select the category you want to search, or select from the drop-down options across the top of the screen to browse for information.

When viewing an article, the options for printing and saving appear in the upper right. To email an item, click on Share, then Email. Clicking on the chart icon allows you to open charts.

Gale Literature Resource Center
In addition to Gale Virtual Reference Library, Literature Resource Center is a terrific place to research literature (poetry, novels, plays, and more).

You can search by Keywords, Person – By or About, Name of Work, or search for your terms in the Entire Document.

Options for limiting your results and tools for printing, emailing, and saving content are similar to those in Academic OneFile.
Gale Opposing Viewpoints in Context

Opposing Viewpoints in Context brings together several types of content (viewpoints, statistics, images, reference, biographies, magazines, audio, news, academic journals, videos, primary sources, websites) to help students access information and opinions on controversial topics.

The advanced search in Opposing Viewpoints in Context allows you to search for terms within specific fields, to limit to Full Text Documents and Peer Reviewed Journals, and to limit the Publication Date range.

!Advanced Search

Tools for printing, emailing, and saving content are similar to those in Academic OneFile.

Gale Testing & Education Reference Center

Gale Testing & Education Reference Center provides tools for students in high school through graduate school to prepare for tests, including practice tests and resources for the NCLEX. It also covers tests for international students as well as tests for specific career fields. Additional tools include:

- Basic Computer Skills
- Build a Resume
- Career/Vo-Tech School Search
- Career Assessment
- Scholarship Search
- Virtual Career Library

When a student begins using these resources, they will be asked to create a login that they can use to track their progress.

Gale provides On-Demand Tutorials for Testing & Education Reference Center.
ProQuest Ebook Central Academic Complete
ProQuest Ebook Central Academic Complete includes over 100,000 online books in many content areas.

Most books can be read online or downloaded for 14 days. Follow this link to access a webinar on the process for checking out and downloading ebooks from Ebrary.

You can search Ebrary by typing in search terms or by browsing by topic. Once you run a search, you will see suggested subject headings you can check and add to your search to refine your results.

Statista
Statista is an online portal for statistics and infographics. Their data sources include market research reports, trade publications, scientific journals, and government databases. Students and faculty will find useful data for research and presentations in many subject areas. Statista's dossiers are a great way to get by-the-numbers background on a variety of topics.

To get started using Statista, login to your LIRN portal and select the subject General & Interdisciplinary, then click on the tile labeled Statista. Type terms in the search box and hit enter, or hover over the drop-down boxes at top of the screen to browse content by Industries, Topics, Digital Markets, Consumer Markets, or Infographics.

You can download and often modify content to make your own customized charts.

When you do a search (example shown: hospitals) notice the Search areas section where you can limit to Statistics, Forecasts, Market Analytics, Studies, Dossiers and Industry Reports, Topics, and Infographics.
Pathfinder - Locating Funeral Service Articles in Gale’s Business Insights Global database

General Information

This guide is designed to help you locate full-text copies of journal articles related to your funeral service research topic. “Gale Business Insights: Global uses case studies, statistical data sources, news articles, academic journals and topical reference materials organized by country, company and industry to quickly engage users in the global business environment.”

Identify Articles

In addition to our LIRN database subscriptions, your local public library and local university libraries have full-text database subscriptions that may include the Gale Business Insights Global. All it takes is a library card.

In Our Full-Text Database:

Our LIRN Databases includes the Gale Business Insights Global database. To locate it:

- Login with Username CIFSLibrary and Password [redacted]
- At the list of Commonwealth databases click the Alphabetical View button
- Click the B button and scroll down the list to find Business Insights Global and click on the button

Finding Articles about the Funeral Industry

1. In the first search box type FUNERAL HOME (or other term that begins with funeral) and change the dropdown from Company to Article. Be sure to check the Full Text Only box
2. You will get thousands of results which is WAY TOO MANY (including many obituaries). So you narrow that down by...
3. Look in the Left Margin under the Related Subjects and click on Funeral Industry to narrow it down. This should eliminate all the obituaries and death notices.
4. In the Search Within Results box at the top of the left column type a narrower topic, like negligence.
5. And now you have a small number of articles to examine instead of thousands. I would skim the short descriptions and only really read the ones that seem to apply to your topic.
6. When you find an article you want to use choose from: Save (in a list you can download, print or email); Print Preview (print as a pdf will save it on your drive); Download as an HTML file. Citation Tool lets you download the citation in either APA or MLA. Share lets you share to social media, email or bookmark the article. If you print (or save) to PDF then you have a copy of the article on your computer that you can print on paper, email, etc.
7. The citation shown at the bottom of the article may not conform to APA as required for many of your papers. Use Citation Maker to be sure.
